not all that Mrs Bennet, however, with the assistance of his five daughters, could ask on the subject, was sufficient to draw from her husband any satisfactory description of Mr Bingley. They attacked him in various ways—barefaced questions, ingenious suppositions, and distant surmises; but he eluded the skill of them all, and they were at last obliged to accept the second-hand intelligence of their neighbor, Lady Lucas. Her report was highly favourable. Sir William had been delighted with him. He was quite young wonderfully handsome extremely agreeable, and, to crown the whole, he meant to be at the next assembly with a large party. Nothing could be more delightful? To be fond of dancing was a certain step towards falling in love; and very lively hopes of Mr. Bingley's heart were entertained.
