He stressed that the Constitution was the "bible" for citizens and its basic structure was inviolable.

IQAC Coordinator, Prof. Pramod Kumar Dwivedi, highlighted the significance of the event, citing two reasons: the celebration of Constitution Day and the presence of Prof. N. Sukumar, a renowned scholar of constitutional values.

Prof. N. Sukumar delivered a thought-provoking keynote address, designating the Constitution as the "supreme law of the land" that strives to establish an egalitarian society. He emphasized the importance of citizens being watchful and assertive in protecting the Constitution's sanctity and authority. He warned against the dangers of the "politics of silence" and urged intellectuals, academicians, and students to work collectively to achieve substantive justice for all.
